

Disciplines and Tooling for Mechanical Micro Machining

Arthur Turner, Rainford Precision Machines Ltd

Abstract

The paper sets out to discuss some of the disciplines required for accurate mechanical micro machining in an industrial environment and highlights the present readily available tooling for cutting a variety of materials from hardened steel and tungsten carbide to non-metallic substances such as polymers and ceramics.

ultraprecision.org